Dear Colonel White:

Let me tell you how much all of us at Brookings appreciated your candid and very excellent comments last Wednesday, February 15.

The purpose of this letter is to ask if I might obtain one copy of the report on computer developments in Russia when it is issued. I will be glad to reimburse you of the charge therefor.

I realize it is not available at the present time, but I shall appreciate your referring this letter to the person who will see that I get a copy when it is issued.

With best wishes.

Sincerely,

Dear Colonel White:

One of the participants in last week's Conference on Federal Government Operations commented at the end of the program:

"I feel, well, humbled, but at the same time very much reassured."

This sums up the general reaction of this business group to our conference.

The men found the session illuminating and deeply appreciated the opportunity to meet with you and your associates.

Sincerely,
